FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Mansa Capital “Green-Lighted” by the U.S. Small Business Administration

Firm making growth equity investments in healthcare IT and service companies that are well positioned to support the post-healthcare reform landscape may now proceed toward the application process for licensure of its private equity fund as a Small Business Investment Corporation

BOSTON, MA—April 22, 2014—Mansa Capital Management, LLC, a private equity firm focused on the $2.5 trillion US healthcare market, has received a Green Light letter from the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) to continue its application process to obtain a license to form and operate a Small Business Investment Company (SBIC). The Green Light letter enables the firm to move toward application for licensure of a fund it manages as a Small Business Investment Corporation. The receipt of a Green Light letter does not, however, obligate the SBA to issue a Small Business Investment Corporation license.

“While there are certainly no assurances, being Green-Lighted has some immediate advantages,” said Mansa Capital Managing Partner and Chief Investment Officer, Ruben J. King-Shaw Jr.

Mansa Capital will be added to the SBA’s Green Light list, which is broadly distributed nationally and internationally. Inclusion on the Green Light list verifies that Mansa Capital has successfully completed the first phase of the SBA’s rigorous due-diligence process.

“We hope to leverage this heightened profile to become more visible among a broader range of prospective portfolio companies with which we might share our healthcare industry and policy expertise,” said Mansa Partner & COO, Jason Torres.

Investment Criteria

Mansa Capital invests in high-growth companies with proven management teams, sound business franchises, and substantial unrealized potential. The principals are primarily interested in private businesses in the healthcare services and healthcare technology sectors. The firm also considers government-sponsored privatizations. The team aims to develop companies that deliver advances in cost-effective care (to new and existing populations), demonstrate potential for strong organic revenue growth, and exhibit both attractive margins and high returns on capital. The most important investment criterion for Mansa Capital is an appropriate business model including an exceptional management team with which the firm closely partners to grow and operate a business for the long-term.

“As we continue to pursue licensure, the SBA’s Green Light verifies for interested parties that we have met the Federal Government’s rigorous standards set for the fund’s management team, investment strategy, track record, administrative capabilities and prospects for long-term success. We’re pleased to have cleared the first hurdle and look forward to completing the rest of the application process in the next few months,” said James (Jim) Renna, a Mansa Partner who also leads the firm’s operations and advisory group.
